

BACK DROP

The perfect backdrop for a lovely woman is a home paneled in luxurious and elegant wood and finished like a dream. West coast hemlock and Douglas fir, prestige woods of great beauty, are popular for paneling.

PELARGONIUMS

Try a few potsful of Pelargoniums on stairs, decks and terraces.

COUNTER PLANNING

When building or remodeling your home, give careful thought to the bathroom, advises the Ceramic Tile Institute. Because of high humidity and moisture problems here, you should be extra-careful in your selection of surfacing materials. This is why the most popular choice is still colorful ceramic tile—waterproof, stainproof and easy to maintain.

Five Hundred Teachers Participate in SH Meet

More than 500 persons took part in the first Torrance Education Association Good Teaching Conference at South High recently, according to Willard G. Andreasen, president.

The educators came back to school on a day off to see about 70 outstanding teaching demonstrations in subjects ranging from reading, writing, and arithmetic to science and physical education. Each teacher got a chance to see two different teaching demonstrations by Torrance teachers.

They also heard a speech by Dean Irving Melbo of the USC School of Education, who made these points about modern education:

1. Excellent in teaching is the first requirement of education. Many new methods and ideas are being used to insure that each child gets an education which will suit his personal needs.

2. Mechanical aids and teaching machines will help teach children of the future and help school meet individual needs, by they will not replace teachers. Machines cannot motivate students, organize needed material, diagnose individual problems, or offer added help in special areas. They may go faster than students can understand.

3. Knowledge is growing at a geometric rate—faster than ever before in history. No one can know everything. Textbooks, particularly in science, may be obsolete within three or four years.

4. Schools need more aids to help students work by themselves—to allow students to move ahead more rapidly and to let students do as much as possible in areas of interest.

"It is so easy to shape our school's to yesterday's needs and temporary problems," he said. "We misdirect our efforts if we fight yesterday's battles with yesterday's slo-gans."
